The hour of Irish destiny is at hand. Out of the storm of sorrow and exil which England has brought on the world we may win our regeneration. I have come to America to consult with Irishmen here before the crists comes. Ireland is a dying nation now. Her population is decreasing. After thirty vegrs of parliamentary agitation she is said focating from it. On the verye of the grave, the Irish people have awakened. They realize how that there is no treedom to be obtained without lighting for it. Revolution means action, not words the Patch are leading the way. Let not the Irish stand back.

man will retire from the pastorate of the avenue and Ninety-first street, ait ough he has been there hardly more than one year. There is some friction in the church. Some persons complain that the Rey. In Chairman is absent from the pulpit on Sundays a good deal, others that he preaches evanuelistic sermons to congregations hine-tenths of which are already professing Christians, and still others desire more pastoral visiting. But, on the whole, these things are declared to be in no sense the cause of the pastor's probable departure. That is due to the Rey. Dr. Chapman's desire to do evanuelistic work. He is perhaps more in demand for such work than any other preacher in America. avenue and Ninety-first street, all ough he
